DISTRICT NO. 1. J. W. STARBIRD, Agent.

Money apportioned, $192.

Summer term—Miss JOSIE VERNY, teacher. Number attending, 31; average, 25; term, 60 days; wages of teacher, including board, $4.75.

As Miss VERNY had taught in town before and given satisfaction, the Agent employed her to teach the summer term in this District. She is a good scholar—kind, patient, and almost over-anxious lest some duty should be omitted. At our first visit we found the small scholars very restless. After the school had been in session a few weeks we visited it again, and found great improvement in this respect. At the closing examination we found the order good, and classes in reading, arithmetic and geography had made good improvement.

Winter term—HENRY TAYLOR, teacher. Number attending, 36; average, 32; term 70 days; wages of teacher, $35 per month, including board.

The scholars in this school have been very regular in their attendance during this term. The parents have taken much pains to get their children to school; most of the scholars have been present on the roughest days. It is gratifying to work for scholars who take the interest in their studies that they have taken here this winter. Some of the small scholars have not missed a word in spelling during the term. Whether the term has been profitable or not, we leave the patrons to decide.

DISTRICT NO. 2. EUGENE PARKER, Agent.

Money apportioned, $97.88.

Summer term—Miss EMMA GROVER, teacher. Number attending, 20; average, 16; term, 45 days; wages of teacher, $2.75 per week.

This school is backward and needs an energetic teacher; we believe the Agent made a good choice when he selected Miss GROVER to teach this school. She was kind, patient, faithful and efficient. It is difficult to create an interest and retain it in a school where the classes are as small as they are here. At the closing examination we found that perfect harmony had existed between teacher and pupils, the latter giving evidence of a good understanding of the studies they had been pursuing during the term.

Winter term—Mr. J. D. BUKER, teacher. Number attending, 12; average, 10; term, 50 days; wages of teacher, including board, $25 per month.

Mr. BUKER is so well known in town as a teacher, that he needs no commendation. The order was excellent, method of instruction good, and the results very satisfactory to both parents and Supervisor. A number of the former were present at the examination, and expressed their gratification.

DISTRICT NO. 3. EDMUND DOW, Agent.

Money apportioned, $126.12.

Summer term—Miss EVA NILES, teacher. Number attending, 14; average, 12. Term, 8 weeks. Wages of teacher $3 per week.

At our first visit the scholars appeared very orderly, and interested in their studies. Through some misunderstanding the school closed without examination, but Miss Niles gave satisfaction to the patrons of the school.

Winter term.—C. F. SMITH, teacher. Number attending, 13; average, 11½. Term 8 weeks. Wages of teacher, —

Mr. Smith is a teacher of large experience, and his method of teaching is superior. The people in this district appreciate good teachers. This was Mr. Smith's third term here. The order was good, as it always is in this school, and at our closing visit, the recitation gave good evidence that neither teacher nor pupils had been idle during the term. The classes all did well. We would mention especially a class in philosophy, also one in The Constitution of the United States, and of Maine. The map drawing excelled any we have seen in town.

DISTRICT NO. 4. CHAS. HALL, Agent.

Money apportioned, $119 92.

Summer term.—CLARENCE BUKER, teacher. Number attending 19; average 15. Term 10 weeks. Wages of teacher including board, $20 per month.

This was Mr. Buker's third term in this school. We found good order at the commencement, and scholars studying well. As we were not notified when the school was to close, there was no closing visit, consequently no further report can be made.

Winter term.—Same teacher. Number attending 24; average 18. Term, 9 weeks. Wages of teacher, including board, $30 per month.

The school has made good progress during the winter term, giving evidence of good training, and industry. One class in arithmetic and also one in spelling, deserve special mention. Mr. Buker is a good teacher, and we recommend him to future agents.

DISTRICT NO. 5. ISAAC F. LAPHAM, Agent.

Money apportioned, $102.98.

Summer term.—Miss CLARA WYMAN, teacher. Number attending, 14; average, 12; term, 9 weeks; wages of teacher, $3 per week.

The Agent did wisely in securing the services of Miss WYMAN for this school. At our first visit we found good order prevailing, and pupils prompt and obedient; the teacher and pupils were united in their work, and nothing but good results could be expected. At our closing visit we were not disappointed. The school manifested a good understanding of the studies pursued.

Winter term—same teacher. Number attending, 17; average, 13; term, 11 weeks; wages of teacher, $4 per week.

Miss WYMAN's services during the summer being appreciated, she was employed to take charge of the winter term. The good condition of this school is the best testimonial of her faithfulness and skill as a teacher. At the closing examination we found good order, and advancement in studies very satisfactory. Special attention had been paid to penmanship with marked results, the school showing the neatest looking writing books of any school in town.

DISTRICT NO. 6.—JACOB TRUE, Agent.

Money apportioned, $102.88.

Summer term.—Miss FANNIE TRUE, teacher. Number attending, 20; average, 19. Term, 40 days. Wages of teacher, $3.50 per week.

This was Miss True's first appearance in the schoolroom as a teacher, though well known to us as a scholar. She brought to her work good qualifications; she was lively and energetic in the school-room, inspiring her pupils with the energy, which she herself manifested. Her labors were crowned with success. Miss True bids fair to become one of our best teachers.

Winter term. LYMAN WATERMAN, teacher. Number attending, 22; average, 18. Term, 10 weeks. Wages of teacher $20 per month.

This was Mr. Waterman's first experience also, and he also was well known to us as a scholar—always faithful and conscientious. We found him here manifesting the same earnestness,—doing every thing in his power to promote the interest of the school, and gain for himself a good name as a teacher. He met with the success which his earnest endeavors so well deserved. This is one of our best schools. We always find good order here, and scholars doing their best.

DISTRICT NO. 7.—AARON PEACOCK, Agent.

Money apportioned, $124 92.

Summer term.—R. ANGIE TUCKER, teacher. Number attending, 17; average, 15. Term, 8 weeks. Wages of teacher, $2.50 per week.

Miss Angie Tucker, of West Gardiner, took charge of this school during the summer. This was her first school. She is a good scholar, well qualified to instruct in all branches that are required to be taught in our schools. At the commencement of the term, the smaller scholars were uneasy. Miss Tucker in her quiet and easy manner tried hard to perform her duty as a teacher, and to make her school pleasant and profitable. At the examination we found the order good. The examination lasted four (4) hours, and at its close we were satisfied that the time spent in the school-room during the summer had been well employed. Some of the older ones did not make that improvement which might have been expected, but the smaller ones did well. Miss Tucker is now employed in one of the Hallowell city schools.

Winter term.—Miss LILLA L. SMITH, teacher. Number attending, 22; average, 18. Term, 15 weeks. Wages of teacher, $5.00 per week.

Miss Lilla L. Smith is an able and experienced teacher. She had taught here before, and entered upon her labors with no opposition. The order was good and teaching thorough and practical. All the classes passed their respective examinations with much credit to themselves and teacher. We would make special mention of the class in "The Constitution of the United States and of Maine." Miss Smith is one of our best teachers, and should be remembered by future agents.

DISTRICT NO. 8. OSCAR HATCH, Agent.

Money apportioned, $43.52.

Summer term—Miss ALICE COTTON, teacher. Number attending, 18; average, 18; term, 6 weeks; wages of teacher, $3 25 per week.

Miss COTTON is an experienced teacher, and has taught in town before with success. She sustained her reputation here, the school giving evidence of good instruction.

Winter term—Miss CORA MAXWELL, teacher. Number attending, 25; average, 18; term, 8 weeks; wages of teacher, $3.50 per week.

Miss MAXWELL is also well known in town as an experienced and successful teacher. This school is small, being composed mostly of scholars from adjoining Districts. Miss M. worked with her usual faithfulness, and met with her usual success.

DISTRICT NO. 9. MOSES HUTCHINGS, Agent.

Money apportioned, $131.68.

Summer term—Miss HATTIE RHOADES, teacher. Number attending, 23; average, 18; term, 42 days; wages of teacher, $2.50 per week.

This was Miss Rhoades's first trial as a teacher. She entered the school-room with a firm determination to succeed, and we had confidence in her ability to teach a good school. At our first visit we found the classes well organized, and pupils orderly and manifesting an interest in their studies. When the school had been in session about eight weeks, we learned that it was unprofitable to the district. We visited it and found it broken up by whooping cough; of the 23 scholars with which she commenced her school, only 10 remained, and some of those were afflicted with the disease, making attention to study impossible even to the few remaining ones. Under these circumstances we considered the school unprofitable, and so closed it at once. We hope Miss Rhoades will not be discouraged, but try again, and we believe she will make an excellent teacher.

Winter term—J. R. CUNNINGHAM, teacher. Number attending, 17; average, 14; term, 11 weeks; wages of teacher, $30 per month.

This school, during the winter, was under the care of J. R. CUNNINGHAM, of Richmond, an experienced teacher. At the closing examination we were convinced that the school under his direction had made good improvement. Special attention had been paid to penmanship, the writing books showing that good improvement had been made. We consider this school a decided success.

DISTRICT NO. 10. WILLIAM BUBIER, Agent.

Money apportioned, $95.98.

Summer term—FRED L. BUKER, teacher. Number attending, 16; average, 14; term, 9 weeks; wages of teacher, $4 per week.

Mr. BUKER is one of our good teachers; he tried hard to make the school pleasant and beneficial. Under his administration, the members of the school made good advancement in their studies.

Winter term—WALTER S. TRUE, teacher. Number attending, 20; average, 17; term, 12 weeks; wages of teacher, $10 per month.

This being Mr. TRUE's first school, he was anxious to succeed. At our first visit we found good order, and classes well arranged; the teacher appeared as quiet and easy in the school-room as an experienced teacher; we believed this would be a profitable term. Sickness and death in Mr. TRUE's family caused him to close the school unexpectedly, consequently there was no closing visit, and we are unable to report the result of his labors.

DISTRICT NO. 11. ENOCH ADAMS, Agent.

Money apportioned, $182.24.

Summer term—Miss FLORA ROGERS, teacher. Number attending, 24; average 21; term 9 weeks; wages of teacher, $4 per week.

Miss ROGERS, though young, and having had but little experience, was well qualified for her position. This is one of our hard schools, but she managed it with admirable success. The classes in arithmetic received a thorough drill in analysis; other classes were not neglected. At the close we were satisfied that the school had done a good amount of work, and had done it well. Miss ROGERS is another one of our promising teachers, whom future Agents will do well to remember.

Winter term—F. E. MANSON, teacher. Number attending, 27; average, 26; term, 10 weeks; wages of teacher, $32 per month.

Mr. MANSON, having had charge of this school the previous winter and given general satisfaction, was employed to lead it again. At our first visit we found the teacher working hard, and apparently doing all in his power to promote the interests of the school. At the examination, we found that the classes in arithmetic had been well taught, and had done a fair amount of work; classes in geography had done remarkably well. A report of the rank of each pupil in the spelling classes, which was furnished us by Mr. M., shows that much interest had been taken in that branch of study, with extra results. Order good.

DISTRICT NO. 12.—JAMES SPRINGER, Agent.

Money apportioned, $95.70.

Summer term.—Miss FLORA AYER, teacher. Number attending, 8; average, 7. Term, 30 days. Wages of teacher, $1.85 per week.

This is one of our smallest schools, and we met here another of our young beginners. It is difficult to maintain much interest in so small a school, yet Miss Ayer found work enough for herself and the 8 pupils under her care. The scholars appeared to respect and love her, they worked pleasantly together, and the school made good progress. Miss Ayer is well qualified for a larger field of usefulness.

Winter term.—E. P. SPRINGER, teacher. Number attending, 10; average, 8. Term, 11 weeks. Wages of teachers, $22 per month.

Mr. Springer, having been for three terms under our charge as a pupil, is well known to us as a good scholar, especially in mathematics. At our first visit we saw plainly that there was no union between the teacher and some of the pupils, but we hoped this unpleasantness might be overcome, and the school prove a pleasant and successful one. At the close we were sorry to find some of the scholars absent from their places, but those present passed a fair examination.

DISTRICT NO. 13. WILLIAM FROST, Agent.

Money apportioned, $98.

Summer term—Miss EMMA GROVER, teacher. Number attending, 14; average, 12; term, 8 weeks; wages of teacher, $2 per week.

Miss GROVER has already been mentioned as a successful teacher; she fully sustained her reputation here. The closing examination was highly satisfactory.

Winter term—FRED L. BUKER, teacher. Number attending, 18; average, 16; term, $7\frac{1}{2}$ weeks; wages of teacher, \$20 per month.

Mr. BUKER has already been spoken of as a successful teacher. He labored here with the same earnest zeal as before, and with even better success. The school under his care did an extra amount of work. This District has been fortunate this year in having two excellent schools.

DISTRICT NO. 14. JOSIAH MORRELL, Agent.

Money apportioned, $133.16.

Summer term—Mrs. NELLIE MORRELL, teacher. Number attending, 13; average, 11; term, 8 weeks; wages of teacher, $3 per week.

Mrs. MORRELL passed an excellent examination, and at our first visit we were well pleased with the appearance of the school, she being in every way well qualified to conduct it. The term closed unexpectedly, on account of sickness among the scholars, therefore there was no closing examination, but the school was spoken of in high terms by the patrons.

Winter term—C. D. NEWELL, teacher. Number attending, 12; average, 11; term, 12 weeks; wages of teacher, $29 per month.

Mr. NEWELL had taught here before, and therefore had some knowledge of the duties he would have to perform. He began with the determination to do all in his power to advance the interests of this school. During the second week we were called upon to decide in a case of discipline. We visited the school, and, after a thorough examination of both sides, we decided that the teacher had done perfectly right in maintaining his authority, and we fully exonerated him. One of the rebellious ones left the school; the other, refusing to make the required apology, was not permitted to remain. Such an affair generally tends to break up the interest, and is always to be deeply regretted; yet in the present instance harmony was established between the teacher and his remaining pupils, and they worked pleasantly together till the close of the term, with gratifying results.

DISTRICT NO. 15. M. W. ADAMS, Agent.

Money apportioned, $144.78.

Summer term—Miss C. A. MAXWELL, teacher. Number attending,—; average,—; term,—; wages of teacher,—.

We are pleased to note good improvement in this school under the instruction of Miss Maxwell. She possesses good ability for conducting a school and imparting knowledge. She was industrious, and faithfully discharged her duties as a teacher.

Winter term.—C. E. DINSLOW, teacher. Number attending, 23; average, 19. Term, 10 weeks. Wages of teacher, $27.50 per month.

This is an advanced school, and an orderly one; the older pupils here are always at work. Mr. Dinslow is an experienced teacher, and was well qualified for this place. The classes all passed such excellent examinations as to reflect much credit on both teacher and pupils. Such results could have been obtained, only by close application combined with good instruction. This was one of our best schools.

SCHOLARS NOT ABSENT ONE HALF DAY.

During the past year many of our schools have been quite satisfactory; the order and advancement in study have been all we could desire. Of course this has not been so in every case, yet we believe we have had in our employ during the year an extra corps of teachers. Among them are some young teachers whose work is excellent, and who are sure to achieve the highest success. Most of them, we are happy to say, reside in town. In securing teachers we must of course compete with the adjacent towns. If our prices are very much below those paid by other towns, they will take from us every good teacher who is willing to teach away from home.

A few of our school-houses are in a deplorable condition—are not really suitable places for holding schools. We hope those Districts where new school buildings are so much needed, will make an effort to supply them.

We would also impress upon you the need of uniformity of textbooks, as teachers could do more and better work. In one school we found no less than four different geographies. Thinking a change of speller would be beneficial, we introduced Monroe's Practical Speller, and the result has been that much more interest has been taken in this branch than heretofore.

In closing, we would thank the Agents and parents for the interest they have manifested in our schools during the year.

HENRY TAYLOR, SUPERVISOR.
